Director John Miller keeps the antics and action coming thick and fast in this oldies-behaving-badly and slapstick farce of amiable British comedy.

Retirement has not been kind to Arthur Goode's (Bernard Hill) family or friends. The former Bristol ballroom dancing champion's wife Martha (Virginia McKenna) suffers from Crohn's Disease, while the local rest home seem more concerned about calorific intake than any kind of humane care. Then comes a devastating double blow for the community. First, they discover all their pension "pots" have been seriously depleted by the bank's investment in an electronics company, then it's announced that their beloved Argyle Bowling Club's land is for sale. They will either have to buy it, or risk it being turned into real estate.

They decide to take back what was theirs in the first place. They decide to start robbing banks.
